

ENGLISH 110P: PRE-PROFESSIONAL PORTFOLIO

Prepare for your profession

Although a degree from the English Department (whether in American Literature and Culture or English) is a professional degree, the world outside of UCLA is not always aware of this. English 110P aims to help you make your professional skills evident to potential employers and/or admissions committees.

Initially the course focuses on written self-reflection about your individual skills, then it turns to samples of writing for such audiences as business, non-profit, legal, and global workplaces, and public writing for nonacademic settings. At the end of the course, each of you will have a writing portfolio that includes a sample resume and cover letter(s) and that demonstrates the ways you can transition your writing from the conventions and interests of the English majors to professional and educational contexts after graduation.

To learn more about Critical Writing in the UCLA English Department, visit:
<https://english.ucla.edu/ug-programs-critical-writing-english-110-series/>

Winter 2019

Thursdays 10 AM – 11:50 AM

Professor Karen Cunningham